Labor Day Molded America's Workforce

Labor Day has deep roots in American history, marking not just a holiday but a celebration of the American worker and the labor movement that shaped our nation's identity. The first unofficial Labor Day celebration took place in New York City in 1882. Initially, there was debate over whether to celebrate it in May, but in 1894, President Grover Cleveland established it as a national holiday to be observed in September. Oregon was the first state to officially recognize Labor Day, and it has since become synonymous with the end of summer.

Between Memorial Day and Labor Day, Americans' love affair with hot dogs is evident, with a staggering 7 billion hot dogs consumed during this period—that's about 20 hot dogs per person!

The largest union in the United States, the National Education Association, honors Labor Day and was instrumental in establishing the holiday on the first Monday of September, giving Americans a cherished three-day weekend.

Interestingly, Canada celebrated a labor day first. The holiday grew out of the organized labor movement in the late 1800s when most workers endured a grueling 7-day work week, often working 12-hour days in poor conditions.

The foundation of our nation's strength lies in how Americans have always come together to build and grow our shared empire. It's remarkable how often we overlook the fact that our country's greatness has been shaped by a strong work ethic developed over a century and a half of perseverance and hard work.

While there are aspects of our labor force that have changed or been lost over the years, we have maintained that indomitable American spirit. This spirit has carried over into our military, creating the strongest force in the world—a testament to the values of hard work and determination that define our nation.

With gratitude,

Thank You Grayson, Kentucky

A Big Thank You to Smithfield Ham Plant and Big Sandy Superstore in Grayson, KY

We are thrilled to share a heartwarming story of community support and partnership! Recently, Sheri, the HR representative from Smithfield Ham Plant in Grayson, KY, visited our regional office to learn more about our programs and services. After a tour of our facility, Sheri was inspired and expressed a desire for Smithfield to get involved in supporting our cause.

Thanks to the efforts of Sheri and the incredible team at Smithfield, they organized a fundraiser through Women Connect in Grayson. Their dedication and hard work raised enough money to purchase a much-needed deep freezer for our Grayson, KY office!

Today, we are excited to announce that the new deep freezer was delivered to us by Big Sandy Superstore in Grayson, who generously provided a great deal to help our cause.

We are deeply grateful to both Smithfield Ham Plant and Big Sandy Superstore for their generosity and commitment to supporting us and the veterans we serve. Your kindness will go a long way in helping us better serve our community!

A big thank you to everyone involved in making this happen!
